The classical core

· point of departure

$$MP = MI \times NP$$

MI Maritime Interests

What the state seeks to obtain, protect, or project through the sea (Solís Oyarzún, 1997; Uribe Cáceres et al., 2016).

NP Naval Power

The capacity to defend those interests: force, position, and awareness of the maritime domain.

MP Maritime Power

The product of both: multiplicative, so that if either factor collapses, so does the result.

Note: the classical formulation is conceptually sound but does not anticipate the digitalization of the maritime domain: cyberspace, strategic will, and the security of the environment do not appear in it as structural variables. The extended model keeps this core intact.
